Switching Between Accounts in a Browser

If you need to manage multiple Gmail accounts, there are several ways to do it.

One way is to log into each account in a different browser -- for example, you can log into your consumer Gmail in Google Chrome and your Lehigh Gmail in Firefox.

It is also possible to log into multiple accounts from one browser.

1. Click on the account icon in the upper right-hand corner of the screen.
2. Select Add account.
3. Log in with your username and credentials.
4. You can toggle from one account to the other within the same browser.

In the example above, sek2@lehigh.edu is the primary account. The consumer Gmail account sek4278@gmail.com is a second login, while the infts@lehigh.edu account is a delegated account as indicated by the (delegated) text. Delegated accounts appear automatically when you log into your primary account.

Another way is to create separate profiles for different accounts within the browser. For instance in Google Chrome, on the right side of the address bar, you'll see a round circle with a letter for your username or your photo. You can click on that and add an additional profile which remains completely separate from the one you started with.

For more information view the Gmail Help page on multiple accounts.